Bethel Foundation Empowers Single Mothers

Oklahoma City, Okla. – On Saturday, April 25, 2009, the Bethel Foundation will hold an inspirational and empowering conference, “Diamonds are a Girls Best Friend,” for single mothers. The conference is free for single mothers with childcare available.

The day is packed full of informational workshops with inspiration all the way through. The workshop topics are: character development, health and nutrition, budgeting and saving money, beauty from the inside out, matching savings program, parenting skills, and what your personality says about you.

Evangelist Tee Brown, the keynote speaker, will discuss “DIAMONDS – A girls best friend and learning about a true precious stone.” Brown offers inspiration to all attendees about loving themselves and valuing their life.

“I hope that the mothers in attendance will walk away feeling more confident than when they walked in; having hope to keep moving forward while knowing they are not in this journey alone and there is help for them as they continue,” Lynda Powell, Bethel Foundation founder, said. “I also want the mothers to be able to have a day to put aside the many struggles and worries that are a part of their daily lives and be able to learn, laugh and continue living with whatever may come their way.”

Bethel will also provide a lunch and snacks for the mothers during the conference. Many great door prizes will be given away as well.

About Bethel:

Founder, Lynda K. Powell, was inspired to develop Bethel Foundation by her own experiences as a struggling single mother. Bethel takes the mission of making mothers more productive citizens to heart. Bethel accomplishes the mission by alleviating dependence on systems that inhibit a family's ability to take steps to provide a better life for their kids. The foundation was established on the thought that strong families make a strong America, changing lives, one mom at a time.
